

Our journey to promote key competences in early childhood education through storytelling continuous.

The Sinbad project has already moved into the second year of its life and with the good cooperation among the partners and the strong leadership of the coordinator we already have visual results and the future of it looks very optimistic.

After the fruitful meeting in Greece, where the filming of the eLearning contents took place, we had the 4th Meeting in Kaunas, Lithuania on the 3rd and 4th of March 2016. In the cool and cloudy Kaunas but with the very warm hospitality of our host institution: “Karaliaus Mindaugo profesinio mokymo centras” and our friend Kestutis Zelnys, we discussed how our project was going, up to that time, and what the next steps of our project would have to be.

E-learning Course - ECVET

The most important outcome of our project is the e-learning course which is ready in the English, German, Greek, Lithuanian and Turkish languages. So we would like to invite you to visit our website and test it: <http://www.storytelling-online.eu/en/elearning-course>

During the meeting in Kaunas we discussed about the certification, accreditation and sustainability of the project. It was decided that, since the e-learning course contains already ECVET learning outcomes which they will be assessed with the help of questions at the end of the course and based on the answers to these questions, a certificate, which is the prerequisite for taking part in workshops, will be issued. The e-learning course gives all basic knowledge which allows a participant to get more precise and to have more possibilities for practicing during the face-to-face activities. Therefore any participant who wishes to receive a certificate upon completion of the course will be able to do so provided that they ask for it at the beginning and provided that they are doing a registration.

Workshop

Our partner Peter Frühmann has completed and presented to us in Kaunas the three parts of the Workshop contents and a power point presentation that can be used during the implementation of the workshop. The estimated duration of the workshop is 6-8 hours which can be either distributed in two or three sessions or can be done in one whole day.
